

K. Anthony Fowler's Bio

K. Anthony Fowler is a Personal Development Coach and Inspirational Speaker on a mission to positively impact as many lives as possible. During the commission of his job he is inspiring, enriching, empathic, honest and leads his clients on an inspirational journey using his own personal tragedies and triumphs. His trek through great adversity to the success he has found today is awe inspiring and delivers a level of transparency not normally found in a high profile international coach and speaker.

The Odyssey begins with him spending his twenty-first birthday locked up in a boot camp, which after some in depth soul searching brought him to the realization that he had to make some significant changes in his life. This earnest and resolute decision sent him on an introspective and thought-provoking quest to transform the course of his life.

During this candid and sincere process to first discover who he was in relation to God, he came upon the transformational discovery of who he was as a person and also his purpose in life as a spiritual being. He realized his innate gift for working with people, and inspired by his intuitive, and empathic personality he could reach people at a deep level and build trust in a very short time period.

By the age of twenty-six, he had amassed a real estate portfolio worth over 1 million dollars. He bought and sold properties and coached others on credit and real estate development. Growing and expanding his portfolio that included a restaurant, carpet cleaning company, entertainment company and other entrepreneurial ventures. He had risen from the ashes, like the Phoenix, of his many and profoundly troubling and catastrophe misfortunes faced in his young life to become a success.

Not only had he become a triumphant prevailed over his quandary, but he was an illustration of hard work, vision, and ingenuity. He became a personal and business mentor to countless others to help them achieve their goals and change their lives.

After the fall of the market K. Anthony recalls during his quest for deeper purpose and fulfillment in life an awareness was created that he was actually in the business of developing people and that real estate had just been one of many mechanisms in which he could serve people.

This profound and insightful realization drove him to pursue coaching full as a fulltime vocation. Finding a great passion in helping people and entrepreneurs develop both personally and professionally, he developed a proven personal growth and development formula that has helped many, from C-Suite executives to entrepreneurs and solopreneurs achieve greatness not only in business, but in the business of life.

His clients include doctors, professional athletes, entertainers, business professionals, and a host of entrepreneurs. He also has an uncanny zeal for those we might call 'just everyday people'. With entrepreneurial experience that dates to 2004 as well as coaching and consulting experience since 2008, K. Anthony strives to bring out the best in those he works with not only by inspiring them, but helping them enrich their lives through personal awareness, spiritual awareness, (not religion) and of course hard work to achieve their dreams despite their perceived obstacles and barriers to success.

He holds a CPC certification from World Coach Institute and is currently working on a Master Coach certification. K. Anthony attended and graduated from Rock Creek Academy ( formerly Restoration Christian High School) in Sellersburg, Indiana and played basketball throughout high school.

He won an NACA national championship as well as a state championship and was voted MVP for both the state and national title. He currently holds standing records at his old high school. They have retired his jersey as a commemorative symbol of hard work, team effort, and outstanding performance.

K. Anthony's community work includes teaching life skills for a non-profit vocational rehab program and also serving as a board member for the organization. He is also the co-founder of an organization called Real Talk, which provides a safe and healthy environment for men from all walks of life to express themselves, as well as helping impoverished youth turn their lives around through education and community support.
